FINE ART BENEFIT AND SALE

at the Hippodrome

Altria's companies are proud to support organizations that prepare young people for a bright future, and help prevent risky behaviors, like underage tobacco use.

From improving academic performance to succeeding at extracurricular activities, Altria aims to support the development of positive life skills in today's youth.

Altria salutes MEGA Mentors.

Congratulations on celebrating your 5th Annual Fine Art Benefit and Sale.

LETTER FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Supporters and Friends,

This is the fifth year that MEGA Mentors has hosted the MEGA Mentors Fine Art Benefit and Sale at the historic Hippodrome Theater. This event has become one of the best art shows on the east coast. The fifth anniversary promises to be special, as you enjoy the largest selection of art offerings that we have ever brought to Richmond. In addition, our silent auction has gone viral. We are offering a huge selection of items from vacations to LED TVs and you can bid on them from your cell phone or iPad. We are happy to sponsor this event and elated that you have decided to join us.

For the past seven years, MEGA Mentors has held steadfast to the mission of "enhancing student success by providing positive experiences and role models to mentor, tutor and teach life and leadership skills". We accomplish this through an established program based on four core values: Respect, Responsibility, Effort and Achievement. By reinforcing these concepts, we have seen improvement in student hope (optimism), self-efficacy, self-regulation and leadership. These attributes lead to a desire to succeed. In seven years MEGA has grown from one school and a handful of students to eight schools, over 500 students and 130 plus volunteers.

Our volunteers contribute time (over 30,000 hours) and resources because we believe public education is one of the most valuable assets in our community. We believe every student deserves the right to a quality education. We believe in working with public organizations, corporate partners, and non-profit organizations to bring resources and attention to increase student success. We believe "it takes a village to raise a child". To that end, we continually work towards our vision "To make a positive, measurable difference in the lives of African-American and other under-represented students in Chesterfield County Public Schools.

Thanks to the numerous sponsors, contributors, Chesterfield Education Foundation and volunteers for allowing MEGA Mentors the opportunity to develop trusting environments to help students. We thank Chesterfield County Public School Board, administrators, teachers, counselors and students for believing in the MEGA mission and actively participating in the process. Your involvement and support have made the MEGA vision a reality.

Tonight, your participation and tax-deductible contributions will enable MEGA Mentors to continue our work towards improving student success. Please enjoy the event featuring world renowned artist René Dickerson. Also enjoy the spectacular artworks of other internationally renowned artists, the extraordinary MEGA silent auction, while you are surrounded by great music, great food, great friends, and the amazing ambience of the historic Hippodrome Theater.

To learn more about MEGA Mentors, please visit www.MEGAmentors.org or the Chesterfield Education Foundation www.cefva.org. Our students thank you. The schools we serve thank you. MEGA Mentors thanks you for helping us change lives, one student at a time.

MEGAOCCASION

The 2016 Fine Art Benefit and Sale (FABS) marks the 5th annual fundraising event for MEGA Mentors. Once again we are hosted by Ron Stallings and his fantastic staff at the historic Hippodrome Theater in Jackson Ward. Held in conjunction with the Freedom Classic Festival, FABS is the signature Friday evening event that includes a weekend of festivities that culminate Sunday afternoon with a basketball clash between CIAA rivals Virginia Union and Virginia State.

The array of traditional, contemporary, abstract, original and printed art provide options for the novice art enthusiasts to the most sophisticated collectors seeking to expand their portfolio.

Once again we will feature a Silent Auction with original art and a diverse assortment of fabulous items available for bidding. The event also features live musical entertainment, great food and refreshments.

By supporting FABS, you will directly impact the future of students in Chesterfield County Public Schools that participate in the MEGA program.

A special thank you to our generous sponsors, patrons, volunteer mentors, school coordinators and administrators, who make this event possible every year. And of course, we thank the art community and WaterKolours Fine Art (Danny Jenkins) for bringing this great selection of art to Richmond.

Fine Art Benefit and Sale
The Hippodrome Theater, 7pm

Master of Ceremonies, Phil Daniel

Featured Artist and Guest Speaker, René Dickerson

Patrons will bask in the colors of vibrant Africa in his acrylics. Sway to the rhythms of life in his kinetic compositions and experience his passion with each sublime stroke of his brush. René's paintings have much to convey. His canvases pay homage to the masters with illustrations and renderings that say, "I don't paint like you, I paint with you." Document humanity through my universal view. In René's paintings one may notice the light of Van Gogh, the less is more of Picasso, the surrealistic freedom of Dali and the warmth and passionate storytelling illustration of Jacob Lawrence. René's mastery lies in his genius. Your genius lies in seeing his work. Our genius lies in suggesting that you do.

Silent Auction

Electronic bidding via smartphone on a diverse collection of unique gifts, electronics, original art, sports packages/memorabilia, travel and leisure options will be offered.

Musical Guest, JTucker

JTucker is back by popular demand to deliver smooth jazz, ballads and funky grooves for your listening pleasure.

WATERKOLOURS A Gallery Of Fine Art

THE ART OF RENE DICKERSON

BY GLEN MASON

What René Dickerson does with canvas, paint and a brush can be mesmerizing. He is a remarkable protean painter. Depending on one's perspective of Fine Art his work borders genius. A masterful self-taught artist, René's genius lies in his ability to share an innate gift for composition and color that many spend a lifetime trying to achieve or learn via theory.

Throughout his life there has not been media he has not pursued, or conquered. From pencils to watercolors, inks to oils, pastels to acrylics, Dickerson is able to tap into an inner creative methodology that allows him to render compositions with a suave color palette and capture a visualization that is uniquely his own.

Upon further study René evokes comparisons to the late expressionist painter and former professional football star, author and art professor Ernie Barnes. It's an artistic period thing. They both appear to share a time traveling Raphaelian unique painting technique (or as more astute art critics acclaim neo-Mannerism). Mood appears to be another commonality albeit a cool, classy mood of a clear karma.

When I first saw Dickerson's painting inspired by the Motown anthem "My Girl" being unveiled at a showing with the Temptations, it took me back to the bold imaginative cover of the 'Tempting' Temptation's "Wings of Love" album and the realistic mastery of "Awesome." Dickerson did the cover painting of the 2001 tribute that featured the Otis Williams fronted Temptations as reliefs on Mount Rushmore. Appropriately Terry Weeks, Barrington Henderson, Ron Tyson and Harry McGilberry flank the affable, infallible second tenor Williams.

"There isn't a room in my house that doesn't have a René Dickerson oil painting in it," said Williams, recently, when asked to comment on Dickerson's body of work. "He is simply a great artist. René is a dear friend but more importantly he is an unsung, talented black man when it comes to fine art. He hasn't gotten his just due."

Though he was rushing to check in his hotel for a west coast performance, Williams wanted to make a statement about the body of work of his close friend. One of Dickerson's paintings "The Motown Star Collage" hangs as a focal point among many of Williams and the Temptation's awards and gold records. His attention to detail is uncanny. The painting even has motifs of the iconic labels of our youth Tamla, Motown, Gordy are included among the images of theatres, stages, studios, marquees, performance scenes and Motown's collage of stars.

Gifted artists like Dickerson are the archetypes. For lack of a better metaphor consider René as a visual poet who captures dimensions from one end of the creative sub-consciousness to the reality of the finished painting. His body of work suggests he is capable of rendering the potential of the unconscious mind, but in its unique way, there is order, a message and, ultimately, a two-dimension image with three-dimension reality.

The artist Dickerson was born March 12, 1951 and reared in Oakland, CA. He attended Hammarskjold (Dag) Elementary and James Madison Junior High School. After graduating from Castle Rock High School Dickerson was drafted by the U.S. Army. His artwork took him from serving in the Military Police (as an MP) to landing jobs as an illustrator on various Army assignments.

"As an illustrator I did the drawings for the post newspapers, and of course, I did a lot of drafting, photography, war games planning, played army on paper. Topography, photography, mapmaking, drafting," Dickerson added.

What were the first pictures he drew as a child?

"I had to be four or five. I was always doodling," said Dickerson. "I was fascinated with the Popeye and Warner Brothers cartoon characters. The work of the Fleischer Brothers on Superman and Popeye were almost three-dimensional with the use of color, shadow, highlight and cast shadow. I liked those cartoons. Their work was ahead of its time not like the somewhat flat computer-generated images of today," he continued.

"My father was a big influence. He recognized at an early age that I had some kind of talent. He encouraged me. He'd buy pencils, watercolor sets, illustration pads and stuff. One of the most important things he did was to take me to a friends studio who was an artist when I was about seven," René recalled. "Dad introduced me to a friend of his named Mr. Frank who was an oil painter. He was the first real, fine artist I would meet and I never forgot that. It was a validation! I knew then I wanted to be a painter. I could see myself doing THAT."

That visit was the cathartic experience for the budding, future fine artist.

"There was a painting on an easel he was obviously working on. I knew then it was what I wanted to do. I wanted to make my living doing that! I saw his work in different places: barbershops, homes, beauty salons, around town.

"There was one teacher that I took to. She saw something in me.

"It was a free style assignment and I did these little characters I used to draw. I did this piece in a dry pastel. It's the very first piece I did in school that I enjoyed doing," Dickerson reflected. "She took me to her home in a commune in Berkley, CA. "She wanted her friends to see the drawing. It was just something I did, but she wanted to show it off to her roommate and friends. That's when I knew I needed to do me."

"I was always sketching and stuff. I drew pencil portraits almost anything. One of the things I really liked was the Motown sound like we all did back in high school and junior high. Everyone sung and listened to the Miracles. I would listen to their music then I'd sketch the Temptations, the Supremes. I found inspiration in the music."

Dickerson said that his first "real show" was held in San Francisco. He was the first African-American to show at the Union Square Gallery in the Westin St. Francis Hotel.

"That's where I first became friends with Otis. That was in 1996," René remembered.

In the surrealistic painting "My Girl" Dickerson renders beauty as eternity.

"My Girl" is every girl and you'll find her everywhere René would suggest. And, as one subtle homage to her and her beauty he paints the Temptations paying tribute in a field as golden as the gold lame tuxedos they wear rhythmically cross stepping. After all, the show goes on.

Volunteer

Your schools. My schools. Our schools!

Willing hands and hearts are welcome in Chesterfield schools, where volunteers play a vital role in the academic success of our students.

We make it easy for everyone to participate — whether you can help every day, once a week, once a month or once a year. There are many ways to volunteer, and we will help you find your place:

- read to elementary students
- help in a school office, cafeteria or clinic
- sell tickets at a game
- speak at a career day
- organize information packets
- chaperone a field trip
- fill another need

There is a place for you in Chesterfield County Public Schools! If there is a specific school where you'd like to volunteer, please contact the principal or the school's volunteer coordinator. If you don't have a specific school in mind, call 748-1405 to talk with the community outreach coordinator. After volunteers fill out an application, their names will be checked against the Sex Offender and Crimes Against Minors Registry.

A TRIBUTE TO DR. NEWSOME

Marcus J. Newsome was appointed superintendent of Chesterfield County Public Schools in 2006. With about 59,000 students, Chesterfield County Public Schools is among the 100 largest districts in the United States. Under Dr. Newsome's leadership, Chesterfield County continues to enjoy a national reputation for high-performing, award-winning schools where test scores and graduation rates have reached all-time highs.

As the school division's chief executive officer, Dr. Newsome is a child-centered educator who has implemented creative and innovative initiatives to promote student success. Thanks to his strong, calm and strategic leadership through the most challenging economic times in modern history, Chesterfield County Public Schools remains a first choice for families seeking a quality education for their children. Five Chesterfield County schools have been honored as National Title I Distinguished Schools, five schools have achieved National School Change Awards and four schools have been named National Blue Ribbon Schools. In 2010, the school division became the largest in Virginia to have all of its schools fully accredited for three consecutive years.

Dr. Newsome also owns the title of "visionary and founding member" of the MEGA Mentors organization. In the fall of 2009, he convened a meeting of a few community leaders to ask for assistance in providing positive role models for African American male students in Chesterfield County Public Schools. Since that initial meeting, Dr. Newsome has been an advisor, supporter, recruiter, cheerleader and advocate for the MEGA Mentors mission. His foresight and leadership has inspired a community volunteer movement called MEGA Mentors that remains committed to providing time and resources to students and schools in Chesterfield County.

Dr. Newsome's current offices include chair-elect of the Bridging Richmond Board of Directors; chair of the Maggie L. Walker Governor's School Superintendents Steering Committee; chair of the Metropolitan Educational Research Consortium; vice chair of the University of Virginia K-12 Advisory Council; member of the Smart Beginnings Greater Richmond Board of Directors; member of the Appomattox Regional Governor's School Board; Virginia Association of School Superintendents Mentor Superintendent; America Association of School Administrators; member of the National Association of School Boards; member of the Virginia Association of School Boards; and member of the Administration of Supervision and Curriculum Development and recently elected to the MEGA Mentors board of Directors. He is also proud of his service in children's and youth ministry for more than 20 years.

He earned a doctorate in educational leadership from Bowie State University in Maryland, a doctorate in religious education from International Seminary in Plymouth, Florida, a master's degree in administration and supervision from Bowie State University and a bachelor's degree from Elizabeth City State University in North Carolina.

Dr. Newsome is married to a public school teacher, and they have three adult children.

MEGA HISTORY

In the fall of 2009, the Chesterfield County School Superintendent approached a few community leaders about the need to provide positive African American role models in Chesterfield County Public Schools to improve academic performance, graduation rates and reduce discipline issues. This request was the catalyst that ignited a movement and the formation of MEGA Mentors.....Mentors Expecting Greater Achievement.

Today, MEGA has over 130 volunteers. From 2010 to 2015 MEGA has grown from 20 students to over 500. With the guiding principles of Respect, Responsibility, Effort and Achievement, the MEGA Mentors mission is to "Enhance student success by providing positive experiences and role models to mentor, tutor and teach leadership and life skills." This is done by providing group and one-on-one mentors, increasing awareness of higher education and career opportunities, tutoring, college visits, field trips, cultural and social activities and parental engagement in student affairs. In 2010, MEGA began recognition of school and student achievement at the MEGA Annual Recognition Celebration. In addition to mentoring, MEGA began its Tutoring Initiative in partnership with Carver Middle School in 2012.

MEGA works in partnership with Chesterfield Public Education Foundation, Chesterfield County Public Schools, Virginia Mentoring Partnership, Virginia State University, John Tyler Community College, Communities in Schools and many other community, civic and nonprofit organizations to enhance its mission.

Located in Jackson Ward, a recognized National Historical Landmark in the city of Richmond, The Hippodrome Theater and the Taylor Mansion are the centerpieces of the latest project to return the Jackson Ward area to its legendary prominence. This historic neighborhood was the center of African American commerce and entertainment in the early 1900s, garnering the nickname Harlem of the South.

The famed Second Street, known as the Deuce, was a bustling hot spot of performance venues including the same Hippodrome Theater that stands today. Built in 1904 as a vaudeville and movie theater, it later became a celebrated musical locale attracting such legendary greats as Ella Fitzgerald, Louis Armstrong, Bill "Bojangles" Robinson, Duke Ellington, and Cab Calloway just to name a few. Rich in cultural development, Jackson Ward was home to many influential people, including Maggie Walker, the first woman to charter and serve as president of an American bank, and Rev. William Lee Taylor, president of The United Order of True Reformers.

Today, the beautifully revitalized Hippodrome Theater hosts entertainment events such as concerts, comedy shows, happy hours, and private events. Rev. William Lee Taylor's private home has been elegantly restored into the adjacent Speakeasy Grill restaurant.

MEGA TESTIMONIALS

"Thank you for the inspirational speeches at Meadowbrook High School. They really touched me and opened my eyes!"

DIAMOND, STUDENT, MEADOWBROOK HIGH SCHOOL

'Clearly MEGA Mentors is working. The students are more open and communicative. They try harder.'

JUDY WOLFE, TEACHER, CARVER MIDDLE SCHOOL

'Thank you for coming to this school to help not only me, but those who struggle, those who thought they couldn't do it, and those who said they wanted to give up. With the wonderful help from you, everyone can do it, no one is a failure in life, and everyone has a chance to try their best in order to succeed. I'd like to thank you for taking time out of your day to come the extra mile to help those who struggle and need help. Thank you. God bless you.'

AUSTIN, STUDENT, CARVER COLLEGE AND CAREER ACADEMY

'The fool speaks, the wise man listens' African Proverb. Thanks for giving us the tools to have a bright future. You are appreciated.'

ERANIK, STUDENT, CARVER MIDDLE SCHOOL

'MEGA Mentors has helped me because before I would goof off, but now I'm really improving. The mentors in our group care about me, so when I ask them for help they are always willing to help me. This is my first year with MEGA Mentors, but it is really fun. They help me with my study skills, with my school work, and so much more. I'm honored to be in the presence of such wonderful women. If I am upset they always make sure I'm ok. If I am having trouble in school they try to help me the best they can. They have excellent goals and I am thankful to call them my mentors. MEGA Mentors has shown me that the meanest looking people can actually be the sweetest."

ZADIAH, STUDENT, FALLING CREEK MIDDLE SCHOOL

'I like the fact that the MEGA Mentors actually take the time out to help us, and not just tell us what we need to do, but help lead us there so we get to see it for ourselves."

IMONTE, STUDENT, FALLING CREEK MIDDLE SCHOOL

'Thank you for the many hours you have spent with my son. Thank you for the encouragement, your thoughtfulness and your dedication to our young men and women."

5TH ANNUAL RECOGNITION CELEBRATION

Chesterfield Career and Technical "Excellence is a habit, not an act"

The fifth annual MEGA Mentors Awards and Recognition program was held May 28th at the Chesterfield Technical Center to celebrate the outstanding achievement of students, administrators, schools and MEGA supporters who contributed to the organization's mission during the 2014-2015 school year. The theme was "Excellence is a habit, not an act". The occasion attracted over 250 attendees.

"Philly Phil Daniels" MC of the evening, welcomed the mentees, mentors, parents and special friends of MEGA Mentors.

The evening keynote speaker was former Clover Hill High School alumni, Ron Forbes, founder of Omega Entertainment. The 2007 Virginia Tech graduate is a senior product development manager at Riot Games, maker of the online computer game, League of Legends. Ron leads a team that produces live professional gaming events including the 2014 World Championship, held in Seoul, South Korea, which attracted an audience of 40,000 live attendees and 27 million online viewers. Ron holds a BS Degree in Computer Science from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University.

Previously, Ron worked at Microsoft to develop the face recognition technology of Kinect, a motion tracking, speech recognition accessory for Xbox. While he currently lives in Santa Monica, California, he fondly remembers his formative years at Clover Hill High School where he discovered his passion for entertainment technology. Ron encouraged the students to "find what you love (to do) and give it a purpose.

The highlight of the evening was the awards presentation. Recognized were the following award categories and winners.

NEW BOARD MEMBERS

Jean Cauble

Jean Cauble is a certified master gardener and formerly the 16-year owner of an interior design business where she worked with private clients and furnished model homes for area home builders. She has served for 20 years on the board of the Midlothian YMCA and is currently the Board Chairman. Jean has also served on the Chesterfield Education Foundation Board and Communities in Schools Board. She is actively involved in her church where she chairs a committee of 30 tellers, is a Stephen Minister and the incoming vice-chair of the Board of Deacons. Jean has a daughter who graduated from Midlothian High School.

Art Espey

Art Espey is the founder and principal at Paladin Global Services, LLC, He is a serial problem solver who has grown a company to the top 100 in its mature industry, restructured a key chapter of a major national non-profit and researched the impact of climate change on political upheaval. This diverse problem solving background coupled with your passion for an innovative emerging endeavor is a formula for success.

Dr. Marcus J. Newsome

Dr. Marcus J. Newsome was appointed superintendent of Chesterfield County Public Schools in 2006. With more than 58,000 students, Chesterfield County Public Schools is the fifth-largest school division in Virginia and the 67th-largest district in the United States. As the school division's chief executive officer, he is a child-centered educator who has implemented creative and innovative initiatives to promote student success. During the recent economic recession, revenues for school operations and facilities were reduced by more than $200 million, yet Dr. Newsome calmly and strategically made courageous decisions to successfully guide the school district through the most challenging times in modern history. Under his leadership, the school district continues to maintain an exemplary reputation and remains a first choice for families seeking a quality education for their children.
