The 6th Annual Fine Art Benefit and Sale

JANUARY 13, 2017
Dear Supporters and Friends,

On behalf of the young men and women whom MEGA Mentors serve, we thank you for supporting our 6th Annual Fine Art Benefit and Sale at the Hippodrome Theater. Each year the proceeds from this event are used to support our efforts to improve the lives, hope and academic performance of underrepresented students in Chesterfield County schools. Because of your support over the years, MEGA has grown from seven founding members in 2009 to over 150 members at the end of 2016 who serve over 500 young men and women.

Frederick Douglas was quoted as saying, “It is easier to build strong children than to repair broken men.” MEGA strives to achieve this goal of building strong children by teaching our core values of RESPECT for self and others + taking RESPONSIBILITY for your actions + giving maximum EFFORT, which = ACHIEVEMENT. Our students have maintained a constant high level of hope and their level of self-efficacy has increased.

With your continuing support, our vision for this year is to continue improving our current programs, increase our services to our current schools and continue to recruit mentors to expand to more Chesterfield County schools. We also plan to increase our scholarship endowment fund and put a mechanism in place that would allow other counties to create their own versions of the MEGA Mentors program.

To raise the money needed to support these efforts, we are presenting to you tonight the works of dozens of artists for your viewing and purchase. Our featured artist, Mr. Woodrow Nash, is a world-renowned sculptor and artist and is here tonight to discuss his works and concepts with you. We personally thank him for taking time out of his busy schedule to come to Richmond and help us raise money for our worthy cause.

Besides art work, we also have over 100 items that have been donated by local businesses and individuals for you to bid on during the silent auction. Remember, all donations are tax deductible, and 91% of all monies raised go towards MEGA’s programs that help underrepresented children.

If you want to know more about MEGA, please visit our website at: www.MEGAmensors.org.

Now, please enjoy the atmosphere of the Hippodrome, the artwork, the auction and the music of CHKN GRESE.

Again, on behalf of the students we serve and the MEGA Mentors membership, thank you for your past, present and future support!

MEGA OCCASION

The 2017 Fine Art Benefit and Sale (FABS) marks the 6th annual fundraising event for MEGA Mentors. Once again hosted by Ron Stallings and his fantastic staff at the historic Hippodrome Theater in Jackson Ward. Held in conjunction with the Freedom Classic Festival, FABS is the signature Friday evening event that includes a weekend of festivities that culminate Sunday afternoon with a basketball clash between CIAA rivals Virginia State (Trojans) and Virginia Union (Panthers) at the Richmond Coliseum.

The array of traditional, contemporary, abstract, original and printed art provide options for the novice art enthusiasts to the most sophisticated collectors seeking to expand their portfolio. Once again we will feature a Silent Auction with original art and a diverse assortment of fabulous items available for bidding. The event also features live musical entertainment, great food and refreshments.

By supporting FABS, you will directly impact the future of students in Chesterfield County Public Schools that participate in the MEGA program. A special thank you to our generous sponsors, patrons, volunteer mentors, school coordinators and administrators, who make this event possible every year. And of course, we thank WaterKolours Fine Art (Danny Jenkins, Owner) and Chesterfield County Public School for bringing this great selection of art to Richmond.

Fine Art Benefit and Sale
The Hippodrome Theater, 7pm

Master of Ceremonies, Phil Daniel

Featured Artist and Guest Speaker, Woodrow Nash
Nash's sculptures transmit human delicacies and inner harmony. Examining the contemporary male and female physique, he explores the body's natural form and mythology. Incorporating various styles and techniques utilizing stoneware, earthenware, terracotta or porcelain. Nash's work is fired electronically, pit fired or via a "raku" effect – creating an "African Nouveau" trademark that's solely his own. While the images are African, in general, the concept is 15th century Benin with the graceful, slender proportions and long, undulating lines of 18th century Art Nouveau. In his pieces, Nash achieves his goal of integrating expression, complex symbolism and sophisticated aesthetics to yield striking embodiments of the human soul and sensuality.

All art is coordinated by WaterKolours Fine Art Gallery

“Yeah, but I had never thought about it!” said Nash.

Cue music. This is Nash’s cathartic artistic moment.

“Why come you always draw white people?”

while I was doing my usual drawing and painting. And she said to me, “you can really draw good, but

It centers around a technique that was developed during the 15th century in southwest Africa in the Benin Civilization culture,” Nash said during an energetic interview from his Akron, Ohio studio.

“By the time I was in high school, I always excelled in art class, I was going to a predominately white high school, John R. Buchtell High School,” shared Nash, who grew up a baby boomer in Akron, OH.

“The regular art in the park type thing like what they’re doing down in Richmond, art in the park like things, like two streets or boat festivals those kinds of things. I didn’t see very much of us (African-Americans) represented outside of the traditional paintings that black artists tend to do, particularly during that period. But no one was making any statements three dimensionally. I thought there would be an opening for me. I started to do my research, and I wanted to do something that spoke not just of me, of my ancestry and all those kinds of things.

“Those images were prominent in my early work, learning. It was just because of where I was at: the schools I attended, the images I was exposed to, the people I was associated with, up to that point. They just happened to be white. And that’s what I was identifying with.” He exclaimed.

“That was a defining moment. You can call it my Black epiphany as an artist.”

How did you create your artistic style? “Oh, in research. What I was trying to do was . . . find a market,” said Nash.

“I started out as an illustrator, that’s what I was doing in school and when I was in New York working in advertising like most artist did at that time to make a living. I did album covers (Earl “Father Hines, Cat Anderson, Arnett Cobb and Jeff Lorber Fusion) and magazine illustrations (Goodyear Aerospace Corp. and American Greetings Corp), and things of that nature. So when I moved out mid-west I had the opportunity to walk a few shows, he continued. “The regular art in the park type thing like what they’re doing down in Richmond, art in the park like things, like two streets or boat festivals those kinds of things. I didn’t see very much of us (African-Americans) represented outside of the traditional paintings that black artists tend to do, particularly during that period. But no one was making any statements three dimensionally. I thought there would be an opening for me. I started to do my research, and I wanted to do something that spoke not just of me, of my ancestry and all those kinds of things.

“I didn’t want to do down trodden-looking black people that might have been picking cotton all their lives” Nash said.

“So I came up with this concept of African-Americans, over here in the United States, having African ancestry but we have this peculiar thing about us being exposed to European concepts of beauty, and having to go through that education over a period of being taught art in European based schools. So our outlook on the world is quite different from actual Africans in Africa. I wanted to take these two influences and combine them, but I had to coin a phrase,” added Nash. “So, I took the Africa of that influence, and combined it with what was happening in 18th century in France, that whole nouveau period because I really thought that was a gracious period and movement in art, with organic forms and lines and so I just called it African-Nouveau.”

It’s easy to feel the love Nash has for art in his voice as he speaks. He was interviewed while he and his staff worked to put the final touches on a new suite of work for the MEGA Mentors exhibit at the historic Hippodrome Theater on January 13, 2017.

Woodrow Nash’s artwork imposes itself on you . . . in a good way. It presents itself to you by literally halting you, Making you notice its beauty.

Differently, yet individually, each of his sculptures reflect a virtuosity that some artist may never achieve. Many of them spend a lifetime trying to reach the place Nash’s work takes you. His work radiates with a certain . . . essence.

One of Nash's influences was the late Ernie Banks.

“Ernie Banks was a genius in what he did. The elongated figures, the stylized rendering were distorted but they provoked a feeling,” said Nash.

You’ll find tonight that Nash’s own genius provokes a feeling.

THE ART OF WOODROW NASH

Gone are the brooding images, reliefs, sculptures and installations of despair, misery, the burden of being black in America. Nash says he creates art that celebrates, “the fortitude, beauty, strength and universality of the Africa Diaspora, its descendants: African-mixed and African-American.”

The depth of spirit Nash imbues in his work is palpable. It has an aura that is all that is creative. All that is Woodrow Nash. Nash’s fine art productions, statuary in particular, while viewed in three dimensions when in actuality they are in two. From some perspectives many of his pieces possess a near-photographic veneer that borders genius in its rendering. To hear Nash tell it, “two dimensions are easy, life is three-dimensional,” making images should be as tactile as they are visually impacting.

Which begs the question: how does Nash create that thing of beauty in a medium that no one has seen before?

“Those images were prominent in my early work, learning. It was just because of where I was at: the schools I attended, the images I was exposed to, the people I was associated with, up to that point. They just happened to be white. And that’s what I was identifying with.” He exclaimed.

The MEGA Mentors family is pleased and excited to welcome Dr. James Lane as the new superintendent of the Chesterfield County Public Schools system.

Dr. Lane has a very impressive educational and workforce background. He earned his bachelor’s and first master’s degree from the University of North Carolina. He earned a second master’s degree from North Carolina State and his doctorate from the University of Virginia.

Dr. Lane garnered many stripes before becoming the CCPS superintendent. His career began in 2000 as an award-winning band director and assistant principal in Durham, North Carolina. From there he went on to serve as an assistant principal at Carver Middle School in Chesterfield County. He then became a middle school principal, assistant superintendent and superintendent of the Middlesex County Public Schools system. Right before becoming the CCPS superintendent, Dr. Lane was also the superintendent of Goochland County Public Schools system.

In making their announcement of Dr. Lane’s selection to the position, Chesterfield County school board and county officials cited Dr. Lane as a “visionary educator, instructional leader, effective communicator and collaborative manager.”

In 2014, Dr. Lane was named one of Style Weekly’s “top 40 under 40.” In 2016, he was named “one of 24 superintendents across the country to watch” by the National School Public Relations Association. In addition to his full-time position with Chesterfield County, he regularly serves as an adjunct professor at VCU, James Madison and the University of Richmond.

One of Dr. Lane’s favorite sayings is “if we are not doing it for the betterment of the students, why are we doing it.”

We look forward to working with Dr. Lane for the betterment of the Chesterfield County children.
In the fall of 2009, the Chesterfield County School Superintendent approached a few community leaders about the need to provide positive African American role models in Chesterfield County Public Schools to improve academic performance, graduation rates and reduce discipline issues. This request was the catalyst that ignited a movement and the formation of MEGA Mentors......Mentors Expecting Greater Achievement.

Today, MEGA has over 150 volunteers. From 2010 to 2016 MEGA has grown from 20 students to over 500. With the guiding principles of Respect, Responsibility, Effort and Achievement, the MEGA Mentors mission is to “Enhance student success by providing positive experiences and role models to mentor, tutor and teach leadership and life skills.” This is done by providing group and one-on-one mentors, increasing awareness of higher education and career opportunities, tutoring, college visits, field trips, cultural and social activities and parental engagement in student affairs. In 2010, MEGA began recognition of school and student achievement at the MEGA Annual Recognition Celebration. In addition to mentoring, MEGA began its Tutoring Initiative in partnership with Carver Middle School in 2012. In 2015 MEGA began its Leadership Speaker Series at Falling Creek Middle School, this program is designed to expose students to the career paths of local community and business leaders. In 2016 Manchester Middle School was added to the list of schools served.

MEGA works in partnership with Chesterfield Public Education Foundation, Chesterfield County Public Schools, Virginia Mentoring Partnership, Virginia State University, John Tyler Community College, Communities in Schools and many other community, civic and nonprofit organizations to enhance its mission.

Carver Middle School
Carver parents, MEGA Mentors, school officials and Broadwater community YMCA staff held a meeting October 26 to discuss coordination and maximizing their services to Carver students. The meeting was very productive and resulted in the YMCA agreeing to create a calendar for its stakeholders to list their activities involving the Broadwater community. The next step will be to post the calendars at both mailboxes in Broadwater to inform the parents of options available for their children. Both MEGA Mentors and the YMCA hope this effort will increase participation in both programs, which would help prove the need for expansion for both organizations. Increased participation in the programs could also help justify the request for a lighted bulletin in the community to announce upcoming events. Carver MS school officials are also looking into the possibility of providing a bus to transport children directly from school to the YMCA.

Falling Creek Middle School
MEGA is in its second year of piloting an after-school Leadership Speakers Series at FCMS. The series recruits business and community leaders to speak to students about their lives, paths to success and the importance of choices. They share important lessons that appeal to many students and it shows them that people who look like them can overcome challenges and achieve their dreams. The series has been a success, and several school administrators said they’ve overheard students talking about the guest speakers days later. That’s a high compliment from a middle schooler! This year MEGA Mentors sponsored the first School Town Hall Session focused on Accreditation, providing dinner for all attendees, parents, students and school faculty & staff.

Providence Middle School
The Providence Middle School 6th grade boys achieved a cumulative 3.26 GPA, and all of them qualified for the trip to Washington. The MEGA students’ overall GPA was 3.01 for the boys and 2.96 for the girls. Congratulations to the mentors and mentees at Providence for this accomplishment! In recent years, MEGA has selected a mentoring program as the “School of the Year” Award recipient. With the support of IBM, this year’s winner, Providence Middle School received a $5,000 Science, Technology, Engineering and Math (STEM) grant on November 9, 2016 that will be used to enhance the educational experiences for the student body at large.

Manchester Middle School
Over the years, Spring Creek Baptist Church (SCBC) has sought to fulfill its mission both locally and globally. In response to an appeal from the MEGA leadership team, SCBC’s pastors Jacqueline and Micah Madison-McCreary, 20 parishioners and other volunteers give their time, talents and treasures to serve the students of Manchester.
MEGA HIGHLIGHTS

Meadowbrook High School

MEGA Mentor Phil Daniel was convocation speaker for the class of 2017 at Meadowbrook High. The October event was highlighted with a presentation on the importance of attitude. Phil talked about how his son (Meadowbrook class of 2000) was not the smartest student but had the best attitude. His attitude lifted his altitude to a successful military career.

Carver College and Academy

Several MEGA volunteers recently attended a performance of The Richmond Boys Choir. One of the young men who performed is a member of our program at Carver. Another young man in that program recently spoke before the Chamber of Commerce and received several offers for summer jobs and internships. Carver juniors and seniors had a dress-up challenge September 28 during “Dress for Success” day. The male students challenged MEGA’s president and mentor Howard Corey to a “dress the best showdown,” and the competition was intense! However, the female mentors decided to call the competition a draw since everyone looked so good. Of course, Howard is demanding a rematch!

Chesterfield Career and Technical Center (CTC) Hull

CTC Hull has a program called Academy 360, which helps struggling 8th graders catch up academically so they can start high school on time. A360 launched the 2016-17 school year with great successes and a team-building trip to Richmond Ropes, where the students and faculty worked together through a variety of obstacle courses. Building these bonds has helped students adapt to the unique learning environment of the program, where they complete both their 8th and 9th grade requirements in one year. A360’s 36 boys and girls enjoy a focused environment in our state-of-the-art facility, with small class sizes and extra support from the faculty. The learners have demonstrated great respectfulness, hard work, and positive leadership qualities, even when navigating the program’s special expectations, such as the requirements to dress in uniform and to give up cell phones for the entire school day. These norms help reduce distraction from academics and prepare our young men and women for futures in professional settings.
2016 Fine Art Benefit and Sale
MEGA Mentors 5th Annual Fine Art Benefit and Sale on January 15, 2016 was a huge success. Attended by over 300 patrons, the event showcased fine art, a silent auction featuring electronic bidding, music by J. Tucker, and food and refreshments.

Annual Excellence Awards & Recognition Celebration
Over 250 guests attended the May 26 event themed “Time, Talent and Tomorrow.” The inspirational speaker was the Honorable Cressondra Brown Conyers, a Juvenile and Domestic Relations District Court judge for Gloucester, Mathews and Middlesex counties. Judge Conyers is an advocate for children and is passionate about the importance of education. She shared her testimony of perseverance through the use of her time, talents and how they shaped her past, present and future.

Field Trip to Richmond Flying Squirrels Game
Although the Richmond Flying Squirrels game on May 5 was cancelled, MEGA students had the opportunity to learn about sports management from the Squirrels’ management team. In addition to learning what happens behind the scenes for a game production, the students also met with the general manager and chief operating officer who presented their business perspectives. From their comments and enthusiasm, it was evident the students learned a lot and had fun. During a subsequent MEGA session, students from Carver discussed what they saw and experienced and stated they were extremely impressed with the Squirrels organization. Most notably, the students mentioned the incredible teamwork the staff exhibited and were impressed with how integrated the work was – that others were willing to pitch in and help someone else do his/her job if needed. The Squirrels staff members also enjoyed interacting with the students and discussed creating a “Walk a Mile in My Shoes” program for next season.

John Tyler Community College
A student organization at JTCC called “Young Men of Distinction” recently joined the MEGA list of volunteers by supplying student mentors at Carver MS. The group comprises male African American students who have banded together to provide positive leadership on campus.
